WHITE WILLOW FOR HEDGES. - A farmer in La Salle county, Hiinois, gives the following description of the white willow as used by him for hedges. A cutting was planted by me in 1846, which is now over four and a half teet in diameter. It is steadily growing in favor in this vicinity, where the first hedges of it were made before 1850, being specially adapted for use on wet soils, and by using stakes five and a half feet long, from one to three inches In diameter, set 18 inches deep, a fence it has a deep green, vigorous appear-

True the yield of other crops grown under the hedge is lessened, but the value of a fence, the shelter afforded to growing crops, and the great amount of poles furnished every few years, make these hedges to a considerable extent on every prairie farm here, a paying investment. They are being very generally planted as shelter belts around orchards and stock yards, giving good satisfaction. As a people it seems to me we are apt to grudge trees and hedges the use of lands for healthy growth; many feel dissatisfied if they cannot grow full crops of grain for an orchard. The white willow is one of the most valuable soft-wooded trees to plant for timber, especially on wet oils, being comparatively durable, even for fence posts, if seasoned before set-

SUGAR FROM SORGHUM,-Is it an established fact that the sugar from sorghum is always grape—not cane sugar? The former is only three-fifths the strength or 40 per cent, weaker than the latter. But it is well known that cane sugar by long boiling, and perhaps the slow processes of boiling down sorghum juice may have tended to change the condition of the product.

The writer has frequently used a choice article of sorghum syrup to make into vinegar. It is a fact not generally known that while it will make a very sour, acceptable product when fresh, If | Baby Syrup which is always safe and not closely watched, the acidity will reliable and never disappoints. 25c. entirely disappear. I do not know whether this is peculiar to acetle acid made from glucose, or grape sugar, or

Even if sorghum sugar is only glucose, not nearly so sweet or so convenient to handle as sugar from the cane or beet, there are numerous purposes to which it may be put that will bring it very largely into use at a lower price than the other.

At present glucose is largely used to mix or adulterate the cheaper sorts of sugar, and it would certainly be better for the public to use it at the reduced price, instead of paying more while supposing they are buying a better and higher priced article, when they are not doing so at all.

A Tussle with a Bear.

Recently several young men were out hunting on horseback, and when near William Nelson's farm in Wis., they suddenly came upon two large bears. They fired upon them, and succeeded in killing one, but the other ran for the the cavity with the boiling asparagus, timber and passed out of sight, notwith- and place the top crust on at once; Northover, put four charges of buck shot into him at short range. The beast rose upon his hind rifle, and knocked the weapon from his hands. Then, with a stroke of his paw he felled adam to the earth, knocking him between two logs, and commenced to bite and claw him. Adam held the beast from his throat by grasping him by the snaggy hair on each side of hihead. WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

A Deodorized Extract of Petroleum, The Only Article that Will Restore Hair on Bald Heads.

Of all the compounds which the chemist's art has

What the World Has Been Wanting for Centuries.

given to the world for hundreds of years for the purposs of restoring the hair to its natural growth and olor, not one has teen perfect. Many of the hairdressings of the day are excellent, but the great mass of the stuffs sold for prometing the growth and bring ing back the original color, are mere humburs, while not a few are positively pernicious in their effect upon the scalp and the structure of he hair. All hair dyes are we'll known to chemists as more or is a poisonous because the change of color is artificial, and does not depend on a restoration of the functions of the scalp to their natural health and vigor. The falfing out of the hair, the accumulations of dandruff, and the premature change in color, are all evidences of a discused condition of the scalp and the glands which nourish the hair. To arrest these causes the article used must possess medicinal as well as chemical virtues, and the change must begin unpur the scalp to be of permanent and lasting benefit. Such an article has been discovered, and, like many other wonderful discoveries, it is found to consist of elements almost in their natural state. Petroleum oil is the article which is made to work such extraordinary results : but it is after the best article has been chemically treated, and completely deodorized, that it is in a proper condition for the toilet. It was in far-off Russia that the effects of petroleum upon the hair were first observed; a government officer having discovered that a partially-bald servant of his, while trimming the lamps, had a habit of wiping his oil-besmeared hands in his scanty locks, and the result was, in a few months, a much finer head of black, glossy hair than he ever had before. The oil was tried on horses and cattle that had lost their hair from the cattle plague, and the results were as rapid as they were sarvelons. The manes and even the tails of horses, which had fallen out, were completely restored in a few weeks. These experiments were heralded to the world, but the knowled e was practically useless to those prematurely bald and gray, as no one in civilized society could tolerate the use of refined petroleum as a dressing for the hair. But the skill of one of our hemist- has overcome the difficulty, and, by a pro-
